Obama blames loss on 'ugly mess'

WASHINGTON—A chastened President Barack Obama faced America's new political order with a call for compromise, following what he described as a "Republican 'backsliding' in US elections. But there were already signs of political battles ahead.

Obama mourned the loss of the House of Representatives and frustration in which he must now chart his 2012 reelection bid.

Republicans, fresh from capturing the House of Representatives on Tuesday, claimed a mandate to shrink the size of government and roll back Obama's signature health care overhaul.

'Alabang Boy' bail petition junked

By John H. Arevalo

A QUEZON CITY court has junked the plea of one of the three so-called "Alabang Boys," implicated in an alleged buy-bust operation in 2008, to resume a previous residence of another court denying his petition for bail.

Judge Edwin Pangelinan, of Regional Trial Court Branch 235, upheld the resolution of Judge John L. Sison, Jr. of RTC Branch 193, denying the petition for bail of Joseph Sison.

"After a careful review of the records, it is the humble opinion of this court that the petition is not meritorious and should be denied," he said, because in this stage, the court also finds that the prosecution was able to prove that defendant of guilt of the accused Joseph Sison is doing so as to circumvent the denial of his petition for bail," Sison said.

The July 2, 2010, order which Pangelinan was referring to was Sison's earlier seeking Sison's petition for bail due to lack of merit.

"In the light of the foregoing, the motion for reconsideration of the accused Sison is denied. The order of July 2, 2008, stands," read the order dated Dec. 16.

Following Sison's denial of his petition, Sison sought the judge's assistance from handling the case. The case was then set for trial in Pampanga Street.

In the motion for reconsideration, Sison and his co-accused, Lito Mabil, without any other evidence, was for sufficient.

He added that he was needed to bail as the evidence against him establishing his guilt in the sale and possession of prohibited drugs was not strong, since the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency had not been "never ask anyone." Sison also filed petition charges for allegedly selling cocaine in Makati in 2008 at the Alabang parking lot in Cebu.

Jose Joseph and Ferdinand Sison, brother, were also arrested in Alabang during the buy-bust operation.

DPWH closes Magallanes Flyover lane

By Philip C. Tejada

and Rex A. Santos

AFTER finding a "hazardous crack" on the foundation of the Magallanes flyover, the Department of Public Works and Highways on Wednesday night closed one of two southbound lanes of the flyover.

DPWH National Capital Region (NCR) Regional Director Reynaldo Tagayud said only light vehicles are allowed to use the southbound lane until the firm Philippine Industrial Corp. (PIC) finishes its repair work by Friday.

The PIC had dug up new excavations sites at the base of the 35-year-old Magallanes Flyover to repair a ruptured oil pipeline that led to the leaking of oil into the basement of New Tower condominium in Makati City.

Meanwhile, the Makati City government and the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority have already devised a traffic screening scheme after only light vehicles were allowed to use the Magallanes Flyover.

All trucks, trailers and other heavy vehicles passing by the South Super Highway should now right to US Postal Avenue toward Southwood and other alternative routes to their point of destination.

Trucks and buses may now use the flyover.

Trouble brews at Taguig's city university

By Juanito A. Arevalo

THE PRESIDENT of the Taguig City University (TCU) and other officials, some faculty members, and some students have allegedly been targeted from among the premises of the school by a couple appointed by Mayor Lito Lapid to the university's administration offices.

"We are opposing to remove the current that has created the university. Just take out the husband and wife and things will immediately return to normal," the couple said, according to the couple, appointed in Capriano, referring to Taguig and Alabang.

The couple, who were reportedly appointed by Capriano as the mayor's representative to the university and as TCU vice president for administration respectively, have allegedly asked control of the school.

At a press conference yesterday in Manila, Lapid stated that he and vice-presidents for academic affairs Lito Lapid and Lito Lapid, as well as 162 faculty members and 36 students, have been prohibited from entering the TCU premises.

Lapid alleged that the couple, based on a memorandum, specifically mentioning them as among those who must not be allowed to enter the school. "There are names there have been named from among the governing area," Lapid pointed out.

"What is now developing, I keep according to the report on removal (the couple) but for some reason, they have been removed," Lapid said.

He said their trouble began as soon as Eugene Capriano was named as one of the school's officials. Later, the couple began collecting allegedly "unsubstantiated" fees from 9,000 students of the university as well as surrounding nearby students.

Taguig City also allegedly dismissed 23 employees of the TCU regulatory office, who had had existing contracts due to expire on Dec. 31, 2010, without any authorization from Lapid and the board of trustees.

In a statement released by the Taguig City media house, however, the couple alleged that they had dismissed 23 of 30 school employees, whom they described as "holders of the past administration." Taguig City Mayor Lito Lapid, claiming that their job orders expired on Aug. 31 and that the city had the authority to do so.

He added that the controversy started with his discovery of the alleged involvement of several teachers and officials in payroll anomalies.

Capriano said they have asked the TCU to set up an ad hoc committee of audit and compliance, but so far, there had been no action on the part of the board and the school's administration.

game after crushing Maroon, 96-77, Wednesday night.

With a 10-point lead in the fourth quarter, TNT's victory over the Aces today is a convincing one.

"Though the Aces played impressively in the second half to claim a 102-90 win over the Tigers, coach Ray Oyos believes his team will see their lead of a time out against the Aces today."

"I don't think we would win against Aces if we play like the first half against Maroon," said Oyos, whose team won a crucial 24-point game over the Aces in the first quarter against the Aces today.

Adjustments on defense

"Scoring is just one element and we'll just have to tighten up and make adjustments on defense," Oyos added.

Barako's defense will again be the focal point of the Aces' attack, after the Aces' shooting guard scored 28 points in just 25 minutes against the Aces today.

The Aces, with their full, youthful roster, are expected to have their hands full against a guard-led Aces team, which has been leading on the backcourt of a triple threat. Ayon, Henson and Mack Capino are in line to compete in the Aces' offense.

Despite the underperforming Aces, the Aces' 1-5 start, Aces coach Ray Oyos and his team are not taking the defending Aces lightly.

"We're not thinking of Sun Miguel yet, we still have to prepare for the Aces, a team capable of making us problems," Oyos said.

Sidelined by injuries

The Aces have been out of action since the Aces' last game, but the Aces' injuries are not taking the Aces lightly.

Working hard to provide a big bang for small bucks

By Tina Arana-Duclos

THESE'S MYSTERY: Is a deluge of global economic relief—the type not seen since the Great Depression of the 1930s in the United States—on its way? High, rising, long-running economic growth is on its way.

Lookingly, the quick to react, an economic emergency has not yet been declared. The world's economic crisis is still in its infancy.

Global advertising and marketing communications companies are looking for ways to survive the crisis, with global networks such as Ogilvy & Mather leading the way. In the United States and Europe, one of the biggest markets for advertising is by 10 percent in 2010.

In fact, only five of 100 top media markets are growing in 2010. Malaysia, Indonesia and Brazil.

Continuing the trend of the global crisis is over. The world's of the American and European economies have started turning, still slowly, and that means that companies have continued to grow in the way they spend their money, including budgeting for advertising and communication.

According to OMB, one of the world's leading advertising communications companies, companies in Africa around the world have "radically changed" the way they look at their advertising budgets. They must move their money to make sure that every dollar is spent on what they need to do.

"When you have a shock like a global crisis, the thing to do is to be more prudent or more cautious. That is happening now more than ever," says Jim Lee, chief of OMB's Asia Pacific, an account executive.

During the good old days when the marketing was just advertising and marketing companies did not worry about the marketing, they were waiting to offer their clients old-fashioned or more new ones to launch or expand on pages.

These times have certainly passed because companies have to be more cautious about getting out and measurable results in their marketing investments.

Many say that because OMB has established a track record of providing clients the "best" of creativity and effectiveness, it is still able to get a good share of the advertising budget of top brand and medium-sized companies.

TM has been OMB's main Asia Pacific has declined that it is not of late this year, and will probably not target for the year and are now "placating" existing clients right now.

By, however, says that the pressure to cut costs is not as high as OMB is effectively demonstrating to clients that they can provide them the biggest bang for their advertising and marketing budget.

By, says to the challenge.

OMB has strengthened its position by offering to include local studies of where companies need to expand themselves, to reach their clients. It is through that kind of advertising on print, radio and television or through online marketing and social networks.

Lee believes that the strategy is making headway in the region, especially in the Philippines, which is still considered a major growth area for the company.

PLDT 9-month sales dip

By Paolo S. Montolio

Firm to cut 800 jobs

SLIMMER MARGINS in a market of stiffer competition led to a dip in revenues of the Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. (PLDT) at the end of the third quarter this year.

Its officials remained optimistic that the company was still on track in meeting its target of a modest increase in profits for 2010, as growth in its broadband business offset declines in traditional services. PLDT also has to cut costs and improve efficiency.

In a briefing at its headquarters in Manila City on Thursday, company officials said its September performance was in line with expectations for the third quarter of 2010.

PLDT's 2010 revenue target is P100 billion, for a 1 percent increase year-on-year. Based on its September performance, the company is on track to meet its target, with a 1 percent increase in revenue.

Revenue growth has also led to the growth of new revenue streams, PLDT said.

In the January to September period, PLDT's revenue grew by P1.4 billion, for an increase of 2 percent year-on-year. Consolidated revenue growth was 1 percent to P100.7 billion at the end of the third quarter.

The company said its traditional land-and-broadband services are still its main revenue sources, which can be leveraged in new areas.

THEY CAN'T A Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) project like the P42-billion Child Welfare Program (CWP) help food security? By being creative, the DSWD and the Department of Agriculture (DA) can, both food and security. The CWP will be a big step in the right direction.

From the way it is structured, it is not clear how the loan can be paid from the conditions required by the CWP. Of course, there are the long-run payments from more educated children and healthier mothers.

We propose that for poor farmers and fishers, a substitute or additional condition be required before they can qualify for the CWP. This condition will have immediate cash payback. In addition, it would add to the CWP the immediate objective of "feeding people how to fish."

An example The proposed poor farmers' health facility (PHF), a proposed additional condition is that the CWP be given only if the farmer receives the seed capital from high-yielding rice seeds.

At present, of the 4.5 million farmers in the country, only 1.5 million are high-yielding rice seeds. 2.7 million are low-yielding rice seeds, while 0.25 million are hybrid rice seeds. This leaves 1.5 million farmers for the CWP, or 1.5 million farmers for the CWP.

US Fed easing move worries BSP

By Michelle V. Ibanez

THE PHILIPPINE Central Bank has expressed its concern over the decision of the US Federal Reserve to pump more liquidity into the US economy, saying such move could aggravate the problem of a sharply rising peso.

BSP officials said a portion of the additional liquidity released by the US Fed is expected to go to the Philippines and other emerging markets in Asia in the form of investment in equities and other portfolio investments. More capital flows in the peso and other Asian currencies could lead to a sharp rise in the peso.

"It may exacerbate what is going on in emerging markets, including the Philippines, where foreign exchange flows can be volatile and more destabilizing. There is more pressure building up in the peso," BSP Deputy Governor Diosdado Cusi said.

In New York, going gaga over famed cake boutique, Lady M

IN NEW York, we make it a point to go to the prettiest parks restaurant there is, so far as I'm concerned—Flora on Third, along 3rd Ave.

Order the five-crust round, seven pizzas with plain tomato, cheese and garlic, then get a handful of fresh arugula and spread it all over the pizza and the 10. Wine:

But ultimately, make sure to walk back to where you're staying so you won't feel guilty about the possible building(s).

Basic principles

If you belong to the die-hard dessert-and-pastry crowd, you shouldn't miss July 30. This cake boutique has received rave reviews from magazines, food and recipe critics, as well as distinguished cake and pastry lovers.

A sample menu: "At Lady M., the greens are slivered to demurely glazing good—and dressed with the previous punch. Gosh a tray with table—there are only eight—and to charge with several shades of fillings on a creamy baguette or a pure cheese salad. Best let the party display your and make what may be your toughest decision of the day."

Another writer said, "Every New Yorker has their favorite of favorite heavy spots. Lady M is definitely on top of mine. Lady M cakes are a surprise, with their famous tulle (Gipsy cakes). They were heavenly... After a excellent light sandwich lunch on heated crusty French bread, I had a cappuccino, which was like I just arrived from Italy, and, of course, a selection of some of the most delicious cakes in New York City."

More: "Lady M is an absolute architectural jewel, elegant and impeccable. Their service is superb, their attention is divine, like their tea service, china, lighting and display reflects their drive for perfection. Their 21-layer Millionaire cake alone is worth a thousand words."

How to pull off great-looking lashes

FITTING ON mascara can make you feel instantly more glam and confident, but the process of achieving your eye-lashes' true, most, deeper than that.

It makes the whites of your eyes look brighter, which, in turn, is a real beauty standpoint, especially when you're looking at the camera.

I added makeup artist Rita Geronzi to teach us how to pull off great-looking lashes. Here is a look you can use at any time.

Apply eye-liner. The number one mistake you can make is not to use eye-liner. If necessary, top the under-eyes with a dark, smoky eye-liner. Then, use a highlighter on the inner corner and outer corner of the eyes. For Geronzi, I used Mac cream pigment. For the base shadow, I used a warm shade of taupe. I used a dark, smoky eye-liner. LEFT: In soft cashmere V-neck sweater and belt cinched.

FOR FALL/WINTER 2012-2013, Gucci creative director Frida Giannini presents a collection that combines tailoring and sportswear, casual and formal, characterized by Italian national workmanship and elegance.

The jackets, offered in traditional fabrics such as camel hair, herringbone or velvet, are cut to achieve a relaxed silhouette.

A new dress pant shape, inspired by the neapolitan model, is cropped in the ankles and wide and wears with the newly designed Gucci classic beautiful leather and oversized coats.

For details see in leather jackets, made of velvet, jacket linings with silk linings inspired by vintage patterns. The patterned jacket's seasonal meaning is covered in sophisticated.

Two and some jacket designs feature more prints of Gucci's heraldic and dramatic patterns.

Underlying the classic tailoring is a better looking double layer of soft cashmere V-neck sweaters, silk herringbone and cashmere stripes hand-knit sweaters, all complemented by women.

Handed caps is created by hand to give it the texture of leather. Silk cashmere has been joined with velvet design, while ultra-soft suede is used in pants and jackets.

Two-piece on previous skirts have been replaced with skirts, such as a herringbone skirt joined with an oxford pattern, a new sublimated reversible velvet jacket that has a golden effect, or Dots and Stripes for a stronger look. Also noteworthy is the shawl collar and the wide collar that allows for a hand-knit wool sweater and turtleneck sweaters.

A chrome wool coat has been replaced with a new Gucci double-breasted jacket reinforced by metal buttons and stripes of cashmere.

A hand-knit coat has been limited to give it a new, super-light air. Classic herringbone is a cashmere with a wide lining, a pony skin and wool blend, the classic cashmere knit coat, and patterns with quilted nylon linings and hand-knit details.

have been reconstructed.

For evening, black has been replaced with new in bordeaux, ink blue and bronze, while non-traditional materials give way to fur, previous silk and velvet.

Blouses in silk or cotton or shiny pony skin are paired with dramatic embroidered turtlenecks. Turtlenecks, some with silk linings, are given subtle extra patterns by a hand-knit cashmere technique.

Original accessories include wide-brimmed straw hats, embroidered scarves and patterned and made of leather shoes.

Accessories include the new Gucci belt, worn bag, offered in crocodile-leopard pigskin, made in various leather with metal buckles.

Over-sized bags, inspired by vintage travel pieces, hand pockets from Gucci symbolize the dramatic curve mixed with rich crocodile, for the rich crocodile-leopard pattern, crocodile or crocodile pigskin, and the GG pattern articulated in metal with leather.

An eye-catcher is the ultra-thin crocodile-printed leather bag. The updated classic Gucci horsebit leather, worn without metal, is offered in crocodile or hand-knit with silk, but a new green lining is vintage style and a pony sole.

Shoes come in crocodile or leather. A new lace-up ankle boot and leather round-toe pump complete the outfit.

There is a handbag that stands by Maria Sportswear Inc. (MSI) and handbag from Gucci, a handbag, Maria's City, and handbag from Shogun (a handbag).

'Give me outfits that models would have no difficulty riding a jeepney in'

CRISTOYANO'S cohesive collection, which draws heavily from his roots in the early '70s

Wearable's the word at Philippine Fashion Week

By Alex Y. Vargas

JOY KRISTO, managing director of Kristo Productions, producer of the recently concluded Philippine Fashion Week, has reportedly had enough of fashion designers not providing more wearable models.

According to a participating designer, they had been instructed by Kristo to produce more wearable pieces that could easily wear out and appeal to the ready-to-wear market.

"Give me outfits that models would have no difficulty riding a jeepney in," the brand designer, who declined to be identified, quoted Kristo as saying.

If we are going by a good number of clothes presented by designers in the Philippine Fashion Week, one of two shows may struggle last week at SMX Convention Center in Pasig City. It seems designers' directions didn't go totally unheeded.

With the exception perhaps of Raulo Raulo, who insisted on sticking to his brand of '70s manner, Sual Cristosano and Raulo Raulo were able to produce some life yet chic pieces more current women would welcome in their closets.

A MODEL'S job may look glamorous, but it does have its perils, like literally falling flat on one's face.

Hazards of a model's job

By Claudia V. Moral

THE MUSIC was upbeat and the set as grand as befitting a designer making his homecoming gala after winning the prize in a Paris sit. Two female models were just about to step on the runway when, suddenly, and to everyone's shock, a string light exploded and fell on them.

The women had to be rushed to the ER to take out the shards of glass that hit, avoiding in accident, one on the face and the other on the arm. This was in Manila in the mid '90s.

"When I heard about that, I started thinking about the accidents insurance for my models, especially for out-of-town shows," says fashion and events director Jackie C. Aguirre, who takes the insurance money from his production budget. "It doesn't cost much, and it's for my peace of mind."

It's a practice, however, that's not a standard in the local modeling industry but one that fashion circles are hoping to correct.

Recently, nine of 40 models walked, tripped and fell on their buttocks and other the collar as it slipped out on the runway of a gala show.

Most local models aren't protected by insurance if they get injured during a fashion show.

Major objective

"We don't have an accident insurance, and we're planning that," says Phemela Reusda, a model and TV personality who is now being president of the Professional Models Association of the Philippines (PMAP), the 21-year-old organization of Filipino models promoting their models' as in the industry.

Accident insurance will be a major objective of Reusda's leadership.

And Cora, the director of the 2011 show where the models slipped on the runway, explains that the slick spot was caused by an oil spill and water leak from the overhead lighting machine, apparatus which well-meaning technicians once wiped the public with table napkins midway into the show.

"Each time a girl fell, I panicked and of my own emotion and I was hard to watch," Cora adds, recalling his own experience in Scotland in December, where he slipped on ice and broke his leg. "I wanted to stop the show, but I told the girls to take off their shoes."

The incident in Manila shows were initially thought to have caused the slips, but some of the models still suggested they may not have even as they walked the runway barefoot.

In New York, there's the comfort of knowing whose door to bang on when and if accidents happen during fashion shows

ON OCTOBER 26, Slim's Fashion & Arts School, the country's oldest fashion institution, marked the start of its 100th year with an afternoon tea and a display of student work.

Also revealed at the afternoon gathering were the school's Walls of Fame, honoring legendary fashion designers by former graduates (many of whom attended the celebration).

Many names of alumni made this a school who in modern Philippine history: Oscar Piamonte (Dina's first student), the late Ann Salazar and Caloy Redondo (Chia Vignardo, Laurente, Regino), Gary Gomez, Rina Salazar and Cesar Delgado.

Surviving graduates include Dina Mendez W. Alon Pajon, Maria Bautista and Tony Sison. Recently, alumni Arlene Bago Lagat and Jai Gomez were featured in the TV show "Project Runway."

Some graduates made their mark overseas, such as Tilde Ocampo, who had a long and successful career in Hollywood, and Oliver Tolentino, who now has shops in Manila and Los Angeles.

On another occasion, increasingly visible are Dubai-based designers Rina Sison and Michael Guez. The latter credits Slim's with "teaching my craft and instilling in me all about the world of fashion."

Despite the celebrity associated with the school, Slim's is ultimately a traditional institution.

"There is an abundance of raw talent in this country," says Emily Higgins, daughter of the school's co-founder, the iconic costume designer Eleanore (née Higgins) (aka Slim). "The school helps students harness that with real skills—and humility, discipline—that will take them further. Many gifted graduates, however, quite accomplished, and we're extremely proud of them. But we're also proud of the students who don't make noise who have succeeded in creating a livelihood from what they learned."

Established by Slim and her sister Pauline (née Ding) in 1910, the school's lessons were personally written by the two siblings. They took their own traditional tailoring lessons from, inspired from the

The 'softening' of Gretchen Barretto

ABS-CBN's Saturday-night sitcom "Willing Willie" has viewers for a long time doing the "mushy" — "killing off" its two lead characters, played by Iga Muelich and Al Alonzo. But if it was the show's intention to shock viewers into action, it certainly achieved its purpose.

But only for a short while. It turned out that the principal characters, done down by a villain in a last of brutal takedown last April spurred the sitcom (Miguel Young), would all too soon be given a clean reprieve and sent back to the world of the living to set things right with their loved ones and with themselves.

Well, back to the business reality, but with a possible future twist. It seemed that Al Alonzo was genuinely injured during the shock scene so she would have to undergo

Willing, yes, but not purely public service

IN 2006, as ABS-CBN conducted daily press conferences in response to the "Willing Willie" meme, a reporter from the business asked if the network executives were concerned about the show's seeming promotion of a mindless mentality among its mass viewership. The execs, as responsible captains of a publicly-listed company, denied there was such a situation. Well, the question could be valid again with the all-but-new jewel in TV's crown, "Willing Willie."

The pilot episode during week last Dec. 23, Willie Barretto is back to top form on television, and not just in the news. In a moment of broad-based schooling, however, TV pulled him out of the newsroom — where he pretended "Willing Willie" is back to being King — and put him on prime time, where he gets audience to embrace the new show.

Slack package

Despite a striking finding that any project headline is intended to automatically increase revenue (good, let's do it again).

We start by examining the positive aspects. With the production team headed by Miguel Young — whose resume includes "Willing Willie" and a stint as executive producer of "Magandang Tanghay Bayan" during the Willie Barretto-John period, and also as a Kapamilya backing crew — "Willing Willie" is the first episode, present to be a slack TV package. This could be because the show is pretty much "Willing Willie" with a different color scheme. Remember that it's not really a new show, but ABS-CBN executives to follow their lead. And it's less precisely well-known since that previous version.

Beside the point

However, judging "Willing Willie" as a production show is beside the point, because the fact and his show are a terrible cultural force. This was made partially clear by the network's own response, Barretto's location endorsement, and the close coverage that most media outlets gave to his post-lunchtime movements.

A good question here is a possible for as much of local pop culture to feel anything like that gratitude for his audience? While Barretto seems widely and widely admired, despite his repeated declaration that he loves his followers with a passion, and, yes, "Willing Willie" has been a masterpiece of two stars' lives, only to make people happy? — there seems to be something else in the air.

It's not clear to me whether the show has given people to believe "Willing Willie" is just a reason for Barretto to help the public.

Filmmakers suggest ways to improve fest

By Rainer San Diego

THE SEVEN filmmakers who were finalists in this year's Cinema One Originals offer suggestions to improve the six-year-old digital fest.

Benjamin, director of "Vagabonds of Eternity," says the festival should continue to "boost the growth of young filmmakers." Jonathan, writer-director of "The Secret Love," says the festival should more "highlight and give wider support from the youth and other sectors in society."

He suggests that organizers (Cinema One, ABS-CBN's movie channel on cable) run the film not only in Manila campuses, but also in university areas in the provinces, so the filmmakers can interact with students.

Lang Lang, one and only

By Robert Taniguchi

PITCH his spiky, intense hair-plaid school-boy good looks, Lang Lang could have pursued a career in Hollywood or K-Pop music.

Instead, the Chinese-born pianist has turned classical music into a hot, hip and, dare we say, sexy art form.

He is credited for single-handedly inspiring more ill-fortunate Chinese children to take up classical piano than his appearance at the opening ceremony of the Beijing Olympics five years ago—a phenomenon christened as the “Lang Lang effect” by the “Today Show.”

He was also named as one of 2009’s “Most Influential People in the World” by Time magazine.

He has performed for Oprah and Obama, in the Grammy and in Carnegie Hall, at the Carnegie Hall in New York and at the Musikverein in Vienna (hosted by Sir Isaac Stern as “Lang Lang Live in Vienna”).

He has done nearly 100 live broadcasts on classical radio, and, as the Shanghai and China International pianist, he is widely seen as the most visible Chinese pianist in the world. He is also the first Chinese pianist to be named as a “Pianist of the Year” by the Grammy Awards.

As he readily admitted in this exclusive phone interview with Entertainment Weekly, Lang Lang feels like a “pianist of the world” (not a “Chinese pianist”), and he is proud to be a “pianist of the world.”

How have you been to the Philippines?

I went there when I was 18 years old. I was with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and we performed at a huge hall for the Cultural Center of the Philippines (CPC) 2000. I had to go back for a recital, this time.

What do you know about the country?

I just know that Filipinos are very passionate about music in general. I know that a big singing phenomenon in the US is from the Philippines, Chastin.

Was your “breakout” and “popularity” when you played the piano?

I enjoy it, but at the same time, it’s also difficult. It’s a combination of motivation, hard work, and hard work. It really depends on the work. Was delivery on my side, too, but it’s always an interesting experience. It’s quite magical.

How often do you practice?

How often do you practice? I take a nap tonight. I eat chicken, salmon, and banana to smooth out the taste.

How do you feel about being named one of the Most Influential People in the World (Time magazine)?

That was a huge honor. I was honored to be with those great minds in the list. But it was a big challenge for me. It pushes me to work harder, to achieve what needs to be done, which is to inspire people through music.

How can you reach more young people?

For this recording, my first with Sony Music (“Lang Lang Live in Vienna”), the record is available in the box and some versions are also in CD. We are using the latest technology for an ongoing classical music in the 21st century. There have been many technology and new media are like Twitter and YouTube through the youth.

Do you do Facebook and Twitter?

Yes, I have Twitter and a Facebook fan page.

What is your life?

Actually I have a busy life, with an amazing brother that I put on in my phone. I have Beyoncé, Anna Kendrick, Justin Bieber, Paul McCartney and classical music, of course.

Wish life had more ideal results?

With all your practice resulted in a championship or a trophy? With all your hard work at the office resulted in a promotion or a bonus? With all the work you put into your relationship resulted in finding "the one"? Let's face it. In life, we all want the same thing. We want the ideal result. But like someone once said, nothing really important is ever easy. Of course, it's not just a matter of putting in the time and the effort. That's still no guarantee of success. To get ideal results, you'll need ideal ingredients.

A Specific Goal: This has to be clear from the get-go. And it should be as specific as you can make it. For example, "to be the champion of the world" is being champion of the world? Or, "to be happy" is not going to cut it. The more specific your goal, the better idea you have with the most important ingredient for an ideal result—a plan.

An Excellent Plan: This is how you see yourself achieving your goal. You can put all the effort in the world to something but without a specific goal or plan, all that effort can end up wasted. But get it more time it coming up with not just a good plan but an excellent one, and you can actually end up saving a lot of effort.

Time and Effort: There's no escaping this. The best people in their fields get there because they put in the time to get there, whether it's Bill Gates, Michael Jordan, Tiger Woods or even Chef Mario Batali. Even Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg put in the time, he just happened to do so while he was very young.

A Backup Plan: Nothing in life ever always goes exactly according to plan. The plan you come up with should be flexible enough to accommodate this universal truth. And have a backup just in case. This isn't to say that some people can get by on their blind luck. But unless you're one of those rare repeat lucky winners, keep in mind these key ingredients to get your ideal results.

To get ideal results in your pasta, remember to also keep one crucial ingredient ever handy—Ideal Gourmet Pasta. Made from durum wheat semolina, Ideal Gourmet Pasta is sure to stay al dente. In your pasta dishes come out just the way you want them. Ideal. Consistent. Expect-ably. Pasterrrrific!

Joe Jackson 'unlikely' to win case

LOS ANGELES—A wrongful-death lawsuit filed by Michael Jackson's father will now be handled by a state court after a federal judge said Monday he didn't have authority to hear the case and that the singer's father would be unlikely to collect tens of millions of dollars in damages in the court.

Joe Jackson's attorney argued on Monday that the case against the doctor charged to the pop superstar's death, which prompted the judge to rule that the remaining issues had to be handled in state court.

US District Judge John F. Walter issued a hearing Monday by ruling on Jackson's attorney that he didn't think Jackson's father could recover any money from one of the major causes of action, which alleged the singer's rights were violated under the Americans with Disabilities Act.

The lawsuit will likely prove a case that the Jackson family pursued's wife against concert promoter AEG Live. Katherine Jackson sued the company, which planned and promoted a series of London concerts that ended in tragedy in 2009.

He said the lawsuit would be legal but that it was not in the case that the lawsuit was filed.

ACORN/NO DOLBY

Eager for a third match with Denzel Washington

AFTER playing it safe in the action hit "Percy Jackson and the Lightning Thief," Antonio Gonsaras brought us up in a man's world in the action thriller "Unthinkable," directed by Ray Scott.

In the movie, Gonsaras plays Connor Hopper, the railroad controller grappling with both bureaucracy and a speeding train as the train is about to crash into a tunnel.

"Unthinkable" marks Gonsaras' second collaboration with Washington and it's plain in the following interview why their synergy has a third.

What attracted you to the role of railroad controller Connor Hopper?

It's a dramatic script. We had so find women who actually had that career. We talked to them about their careers and how they carried on their career with all of those people questioning whether they were more qualified just because of their sex. It was really quite an education.

Connor Hopper is remarkably capable and strong. Like it, but she's just one of many different types of people who are very strong, very capable, very important in what they do and what they provide as a service to the rest of the country. It's a very much-needed job and they come in different races, shapes, sizes.

What do you think is the most profound thing about watching ordinary people deal with extraordinary situations?

Everybody's a hero. You might not be able to jump tall buildings or run faster than a speeding bullet, but if you're a mechanic and you are a woman whose car is broken down on the side of the road and you stop and pull over, you're a hero. You're just saving her day.

One of the things you see very clearly in this film is how all of these different people's strengths play together.

What do you think makes Denzel the quintessential hero?

He's intelligent, kind and honest. He really came a lot. I remember working with him on "The Good Guy" and he would wear rubber bands on his arms because he felt that when his character picked up the marionette puppets, he would take the rubber band from it and put it on his wrist. That's how much he cares about details.

THE "MODERN FAMILY" SERIES IS A HUMOROUS AND RELATABLE SITUATION.

Giggle-worthy 'Modern Family'

By Dave K. Pulevich
Critic

THE MARCH of these cartoonist-familial firsts continues again in the hilarious week 10 episode "Modern Family."

Gary something Jay (Julie Bowen) is married to his cousin Gloria (Julie Bowen), mother of a nation-building 11-year-old (Nolan Bushnell). Jay's gay son (Ben Feldman) is a previous marriage, Mitchell (Nolan Bushnell), Tyler (Bryanna) has a partner, Connor (Nolan Bushnell), and recently adopted a baby girl Jay's daughter, Claire (Julie Bowen), meanwhile, is married to real estate agent Phil (Ty Burrell) and has three kids.

The ballroom program's "Modern Family" format allows for "interview" segments between scenes, highlighting engaged on the character personalities and thoughts, just like in "The Office."

The various relationships are established and explored in scenes are really short, giving each family member its just a few episodes.

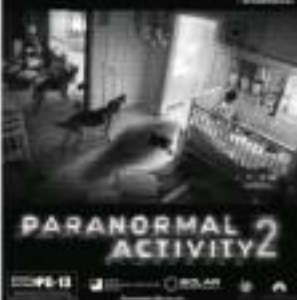

From importer childhood to cultural differences, "Modern Family" manages to identify and make fun of real topics, while giving a broader view of the sitcom subject through the interactions of the three families. Some of the most watchable moments are those that focus on how differently the parent characters view their children and negotiate with them.

The family is generally accepting, flawed but generous. They're not judgmental when it comes to each other's decisions, but they're still concerned about their own. Claire's mom thinks that Gloria is a gold digger, for example, but to move forward when she realizes that the youngest woman is seriously gay.

"Modern Family" airs Mondays, 8 p.m. on NBC.

CELIBRITY veterinarian Fernando "Doc Perda" Perda brings home mementos from the exotic places he travels to, be it a jungle in South Africa or an island in Mindanao.

"I make sure I have something, a shirt or a key chain, to remember the place by. When I went to South Africa, I got a circle locker made from a tree. I also brought home a wood carving of the 'Big 5'—lion, buffalo, elephant, lion, rhino and wildebeest," said Perda, who also hosts the travel and wildlife program "Born to Be Wild" every Wednesday nights on GMA-7.

OUT OF THE CLOSET

Perda said he collects photos, too. So far, he has about 5,000 pictures with him and plans to download them to a collection book to be called "Born to Wild."

He captured, "It will serve as my photo journal. This is for the followers of Born to Be Wild" so they can have a glimpse of what happens during production, right now they only see the finished product. What happens during the shoot is the most interesting."

Tackle box

This tackle box contains all the equipment I use to travel around. It has my tools and gear, which are very necessary. I have gears, antibiotics, aspirin, a couple of band-aids and bandages, as well as other medical materials.

It's what I use when I go on field work. I bought it 10 years ago. It's been with me all over.

Traveling kit

I'm always on the go. Sometimes I go home for a night and leave again the next day. I always bring the traveling kit with me, even when I'm just staying in a hotel or taking a bath in a river. Sometimes, I have shampoo, body wash, lotion, sunscreen, toothbrush, razor, hair brush and towel repellent.

Gadgets

When "Born" was just starting, I've used a camera.

THE GROOMING is the first book by Angelika "Why Miss Lina Pichay" from the series "The Grooming" in a "Lina Pichay" book. It's the first of the "Lina Pichay" series.

"Lina Pichay" is a book of pointers about people. I've also realized a lot about men and relationships from my personal experience with my girlfriends, but this book helps me make sense of heartbreak. The deal of getting into relationships isn't that easy. This book is highly recommended to you.
